

CLASSICS (CLAS)

Graduate Degree Program
College: Arts and Humanities

Abstract

The Department of Classics offers a graduate program of study with specializations in Latin or in Latin and Greek, leading to the Master of Arts degree. The program provides students with advanced study of Latin and/or Greek language and literature in the context of a broader and deeper understanding of Greek and Roman culture and civilization. Students choose one of two tracks toward the degree: Latin, or Latin and Greek. Students are required to take advanced language courses, but also have the option to take a course in related disciplines outside of the Classics Department.

Financial Assistance

The department has a number of fully funded teaching assistantships, which provide tuition assistance and a stipend for living expenses. Contact the Director of Graduate Studies or the department chair for details. Additional funding is also available for study abroad, conference travel, and other activities.
